

Yahuah= The name of the Father; Yod, Hey, Uau, Hey; YHUH; I simply look at Yahudah in the strongs concordance and notice they are spelled the same except for the D or the Dalet. So remove the Dalet from Yahudah and you get Yahuah.

Yahusha= The name of the Son; meaning Yahu is our deliverer. This is based on the idea that Messiah had the same name as Joshua; whether or not that is true I am not for sure. I see Joshua referred to 1 time in Nehemiah 8:17 as Yeshua- Yod Shin Uau Ayin. I see Joshua referred to 2 times in Deuteronomy 3:21 and Judges 2:7 as Yahushua- Yod Hey Uau Shin Uau Ayin. Shua- strongs #7769 & 7768 it means to cry; to be free; to holler for help; to holler for freedom from some trouble- even though strongs has Yeshua as meaning "He will save" in strongs #3442. I see Joshua 217 times as Yahusha- Yod Hey Uau Shin Ayin. There is much controversy over this name- I will not go into detail of the controversial information. Moses changes Joshuas name in Numbers 13:16 from Oshea or Hoshea or Husha (Hey Uau Shin Ayin) to Joshua or Yahusha (Yod Hey Uau Shin Ayin)- So Moses added a Yod to the beginning of his name. Hoshea or Oshea or Husha is strongs #1954 meaning deliverer; the root of this name is Yasha strongs #3467. Yasha means to deliver or help and is used as Savior 149 times, and is spelled Yod Shin Ayin. I simply conclude that the way the name is spelled the majority of times is the name I will go with- and that is the way I will pronounce it- I don't claim to be right or better than anyone, but I do claim to be less than any other scholar. This is simply my conclusion.
